THE PARADISE ORPHANAGE

Will be Ready for Occupancy About July 1st.

The Paradise Orphanage in sight of Abbotstown, is nearing completion, the contractors have worked on the buildings for three years and will have buildings and grounds completed by July 1st.

The main building, which is Gothic in architecture, two stories in height, with an attic, is 196 by 99 feet in size, and is built of brick with brown stone trimmings, and slate and copper roofing.

The site on which the orphanage is located is one of the most picturesque in that section. From the dome of the building, which stands on a knoll, the surrounding towns of East Berlin, Hampton, Abbotstown and New Oxford, as well as other distant points can be plainly seen on clear days with the naked eye.

A large campus surrounds the buildings, which has been leveled and planted with trees and shrubbery. Walks and driveways, together with numerous flower beds have been laid out, which adds to the beauty of the surroundings.

In addition to the main building, is a brick laundry building 25 by 35 feet in size, with basement, in which is installed the necessary equipment for a first class laundry.

The water plant which is in the basement of the laundry building, comprises an artesian well 150 feet in depth, a large steam engine and pump, with two large storage tanks 25 by 5 feet in size, from which water is forced through the buildings by hydraulic pressure.

Another building 90 by 100 feet, adjoining the main building, will be used as a place of recreation by the boys.

The first floor of the main building contains the chapel, 36 by 64 feet in size with a gallery, and thirteen other rooms, comprising offices, recitation and reception rooms and toilet and bath rooms.

The second floor comprises a lavatory 22 by 20 feet in size, a dormitory 50 by 26 feet, four reading rooms, recitation room 50 by 28 feet, communicating hospital rooms, offices and toilet rooms.

The basement is laid off with a kitchen, a dining room, bakery, store room, toilet and bath rooms, play rooms and the furnace room, in which is installed two immense boilers, the work shops, coal bins, and gas plant.

The interior is finished in chestnut with sand finished walls, and is fitted throughout with everything modern such as gas, steam heat, baths, and toilet. The entire basement floors are laid with "terrazzo." The disposal plant is located a distance of 300 feet from the main building.

The Orphanage will cost $75,000, and will accommodate about 800 boys, who will be taught trades and farming. The orphanage property, including the farm, contains over 200 acres.

Charged With Robbery.

Samuel Adams of near Gettysburg, was arrested in Chambersburg, taken to Hagerstown and held for court in $500 bail on the charge of robbing his fellow workman, John Stephy, of Fairfield Stephy was held in $100 as a witness. Stephy and Adams had been working at a sawmill near Winchester for about six weeks and started for home. They stopped in Hagerstown and while at the W. M. passenger depot Stephy fell asleep. It is alleged that Adams then robbed him and, boarding a train went to Chambersburg, after buying a ticket for Carlisle. In the meantime Stephy reported his loss to the officer. The railroad police at Chambersburg were notified and Adams was arrested as he alighted from the train. He was searched and the money, still in the purse, was found in his stocking. Sheriff Barber took Adams to Hagerstown and lodged him in jail.

County Home Improvement.

The Directors of the Poor at a meeting last week decided upon a number of improvements. The sale of the land to Martin Winter has given the Directors a fund of almost $2,000 and this fund the directors believe should be spent upon improvements to the County Home and not for running expenses and has been set aside out of which such permanent improvement will be paid.

The institution has not had any permanent improvements for some years and for the protection of buildings and helping the appearance of things, paint is needed at a number of places and the ash walks should be replaced with cement walks.

Mad Dog Was a York Dog.

The mad dog killed by Charles Black as told in news from Barlow in another column has been identified as the property of George S. Schmidt, Esq., of York. The dog had bitten a number of dogs and one man in its travels. The carcass was dug up by Dr. C. A. Kane, of York, and the head cut off and sent to state laboratories at Philadelphia. The man who was bitten will be taken to a Pasteur institute for treatment.

Dr. Herbert, representing the State Live Stock Sanitary Board in York received on Monday a report that an examination of the head of the dog revealed the existence of rabies. Dr. Herbert has been authorized to ascertain the territory covered by the dog in its wandering and establish a quarantine. The quarantine will include York City and part of York and Adams Counties and will be effective for 100 days. It is expected that State officers will see to its enforcement.

Chester Hoopes is name of man who was bitten by the dog. He is a substitute mail carrier and has been sent to the Baltimore Pasteur hospital for treatment. Peter McGuire coachman for George I. Schmidt, owner of the dog has also been sent to the same hospital. It is said that McGuire was not bitten but he had been about the dog a great deal and one of his hands bears a peculiar rash and it is feared that some of the virus entered his blood through a scratch.

Several other people have been bitten by dogs in York within last few days but not by the Schmidt dog.

Searching for Cause of Typhoid.

R. C. Irvin, a representative of the State Department of Health, is spending several days in and about New Oxford inquiring into conditions there which might have something to do with the unusual number of cases of typhoid fever, which have been reported from that section during the past few months.

Twenty-eight cases of the disease have been reported to the state department from New Oxford and vicinity since January 1, and it was deemed necessary to take some steps to ascertain the cause.

Mr. Irvin takes each case and examines into its history, hoping in this way to trace back to the original cause of the disease. The sources of water supply together with those of the milk and ice furnished to New Oxford and surrounding townships will come in for their share of attention.

The department's representative will spend some time in the work before preparing his report.

The cases of typhoid fever in and about New Oxford have been met successfully by the physicians in attendance and not a single death from the disease has occurred in the town while only one has occurred in the near vicinity.

Monument to Gen. J. M. Hood.

Last week the bronze statue of General John M. Hood, late president of the W. M. R. R., erected at Hopkins Place, Baltimore was unveiled with ceremony. A grandson did the unveiling. The monument was made possible by an appropriation of $10,000 by the Maryland legislature and was executed by one of the foremost of American sculptors, Richard E. Brooks. The figure is heroic in size and mounted on a base of unpolished Tennessee marble.

Chance for G. A. R.

The annual state encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held in Scranton the first week in June and if Gettysburg is to have this encampment in 1912 it will be necessary to extend an invitation and put up the wherewithal. Corporal Skelly Post No. 9, G. A. R., has very properly taken the position that the Post will extend no invitation unless there is a guaranteed fund. The cost of holding an annual encampment is not large, $400 answering all needs, but this sum must be in sight before an invitation can be extended.

At the encampment last year there was a prevalent sentiment to come to Gettysburg and it was only because an appeal was made for a last encampment for Scranton that Gettysburg lost.

The question however staring the community in the face is who will take the initiative in securing the small fund needed. The individuals who have canvassed the town before all declare that they will not canvass again. This situation puts the question up to the hotels, they will have to organize and attend to the canvassing themselves or it will not be done and they and the town may lose the encampment. Will they be equal to the opportunity, which is theirs and from which they derive the largest immediate benefits.

Memorial Day.

Memorial Day, 1911, in Gettysburg, will bring a very big crowd here, for in addition to the big turnout from all parts of the county, a large number of excursions have been booked by the railroads. Twelve excursions have been arranged on the Western Maryland and over five thousand is the estimated number of excursionists that will come over this road as follows: German-American Republican League from Baltimore, 500; Glyndon 300; York 400; Hancock, 300; Cumberland 400; Elkins 500; Shippensburg 500; Williamsport, Pa., 400; Philadelphia via Baltimore, 700; Lancaster 600; Washington 400; Frostburg, Md., 500.

On Sunday, May 28, the Herman Tourist Club of Newark, N. J., numbering about 150 will visit Gettysburg.

Gettysburg Appropriations.

General H. S. Hulkekooper of Philadelphia, was a Gettysburg visitor last week. He was chairman of the Gettysburg Battlefield Commission in charge of the erection of the Pennsylvania memorial on Hancock avenue.

Gen. Hulkekooper was sanguine of the passage by the Legislature of the state of two appropriation items, one of $20,147.91 to make good the deficit in the erection and dedication of the monument and the other of $40,000 to complete the monument by erecting eight statues about the monument with the two in front of Lincoln and Curtin.

A bill appropriating $50,000 to celebrate the 50th anniversary has been reported and is said will pass.

Lost Convention.

E. P. Miller, delegate to the Royal Arcanum Convention at Easton last week with E. A. Weaver, Esq., worked the Convention to come to Gettysburg in 1913. They had badges and booklets about Gettysburg to help them. After a thorough canvas of delegates and doing all in their power the convention was lost to Pittsburgh by a small majority. A resolution however passed, thanking Gettysburg for the invitation.

WORK OF GRATEFUL NATION

IN PENSION LEGISLATION FOR VETERANS OF THE CIVIL WAR

A Work of Remembrance Without Precedent in the History of the World.

As we approach the day specially set apart for remembrance of the veterans who fought the great war for the preservation of the Union, it is entirely fitting to review what a grateful nation has done and is doing for the surviving veterans of that War. There are on the pension roll over 999,000 names and the yearly cost to the government is about one hundred and sixty million dollars.

Surviving soldiers of the Civil War are dying at the rate of 32,000 annually, but the increase in the annual sum paid the veterans in their declining years keeps the total at about the same figure. It has been for several years.

The growth of the pension roll has been steady but it is believed has reached its maximum proportions. Twenty years ago the total number of pensioners was 489,725. On June 30, 1909, there were 946,194 pensioners. These figures include soldiers of the Mexican, Civil, Indian, Spanish and other wars and their widows, minor children and others dependent upon them, but nearly all are on account of the Civil War. The records show that on June 30, 1909, the total number of pensioners was nearly twice as great as on June 30, 1889.

The fiscal year closing with the greatest number on the roll was that ended June 30, 1902, when there were 999,416 pensioners. This was not, however, the greatest number ever on the roll. During the year 1903 there came a day when there were 999,998 pensioners—just two less than 1,000,000. The number of pensioners changes every day, new names being added and old ones stricken from the list on account of death and other causes.

On June 30, 1866—a year after the close of the Civil War—there were 126,722 pensioners on the list, who were paid a little over $15,000,000. The number gradually increased until 1874, when it reached 236,241. Then it dropped a few thousand, but in 1879 the total advanced to 242,755, establishing a new high-water mark. From 1879 until 1898 the number rapidly increased, the 300,000 mark being passed in 1881, the 400,000 mark in 1887, 500,000 in 1890, 600,000 in 1891, 800,000 in 1893, and the 900,000 mark in 1903, when the new high-water mark of 946,192 was reached. This record was broken every year until June 30, 1909, when still another high-water mark of 999,416 was established.

The original pension legislation contemplated the payment of pensions only to those veterans who were disabled in the service. Finally in 1890 the laws were so changed as to allow pensions to soldiers and sailors honorably discharged after 90 days service whose disability was not due to their service.

The next great change came with the issuance of the age pension order of President Roosevelt in 1902, which led to the law of 1907, under which any soldier over 62 years old who served 90 days and had an honorable discharge may receive a pension. In the following year the Sulloway act was passed increasing the allowance to widows. The result was that the amount paid for pensions for the fiscal year 1909 was the largest ever disbursed for pensions in one year—$161,973,701.77, besides which there was paid $2,552,581.73 for the maintenance of the system.

Civil War pensions started in with the act of July 4, 1864, by giving pensions only for disability incurred in the service. This act allowed $25 a month for the loss of both hands and $20 a month for the loss of both feet. The act of June 1, 1872, raised these rates by allowing $34.25 monthly for both these classes of disability. In the act of June 17, 1878, the pension for loss of both hands or both feet was raised to $72 a month. In 1889 the loss of both hands was put at $100, in 1903 the loss of both feet was made the same, and these are the sums now—four times the original amounts. In 1866 a pension of $25 a month was granted by law to veterans requiring the aid of an attendant. In 1872 this was raised to $31.25 a month, in 1875 to $50 a month and in 1878 to the present rate of $72 a month. The various rates paid for other disabilities brought into the pension system have changed from time to time, being increased by subsequent legislation. The highest pensions paid under general law today are $100 for loss of both hands or of both feet or for total blindness.

A very important change was made by the act of June 27, 1890, which provided that men honorably discharged and with disabilities, but "not" incurred in the service, should be pensioned at not exceeding $12 a month, these rates running from $4 to $12 a month. This was in effect a service pension act. Prior to this pensions were paid only for disability incurred in service. "Order 78," issued by President Roosevelt on March 15, 1904, provided for a wholesale increase in the pension list. This was an executive order and was done, so it was contended at the time, without authority of law. It brought on the passage of the McCumber act of 1907, legalizing what the Roosevelt order had done and going a step beyond. Order 78 provide that in the adjudication of claims for pension under the act of June 27, 1890, as amended by the act of May 9, 1900, it should be taken and considered as an evidential fact, if the contrary did not appear, that when a claimant had passed the age of 62 years he would be disabled one-half in ability to perform manual labor, and, if all other legal requirements were properly met, would be entitled to be rated at $6 a month; after 65 years at $8 a month; after 68 years at $10 a month, and after 70 years at $12 a month.

From April 13, 1904, the date this order took effect, until June 30, 1909, the number of allowances under it were 108,921, of which 24,625 were originals and 84,296 increases of pension. There were under this order allowed 14,457 originals at $6 a month, 5,406 at $8, 1,766 at $10 and 2,966 at $12. The increase of pension made under this order were 18,921 from $6 to $8 a month, 3,748 from $6 to $10, 8,913 from $8 to $12, 19,225 from $8 to $10, 11,409 from $8 to $12, and 27,080 from $10 to $12 a month.

This executive order resulted in the passage of the McCumber law of February 6, 1907, which grants pensions to those who served 90 days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the Civil War, or 60 days in the Mexican War and were honorably discharged. This law provides that these men should be paid $12 a month when 62 years of age, $15 a month when 70 and $20 a month when 75 years. The Roosevelt order made the age of 62 years count as half disability. The McCumber act provided for a straight-out, age-service pension.

From its approval until June 30, 1909, there were 501,242 applicants for pension or increase of pension filed under this act.

Side by side with the survivors' pension laws run those making allowances to their widows, minor children and other dependents.

In 1882 a law was passed providing that the widow of any soldier who died of disability incurred in the service should be entitled to the same amount he would have been given if totally disabled, commencing with the date of his death. The amounts under this law varied according to time of death and other considerations, the average being about $5 a month.

Then came the so-called "Pauper Pension act" of June 27, 1890, which extended the provisions of the Widows' Pension law of 1882 to the widow of any soldier who had served 90 days regardless of the cause of his death and giving her $8 a month if she did not possess more than $250. This act required widows to show dependency, but removed the requirement that the death of the soldier should be incident to service.

That continued to be the law until April 19, 1908, when the Sulloway act was approved by President Roosevelt. This increased to $12 a month the pensions to widows, minor children and helpless minors. The limitations as to $250 income were entirely removed, but the act provided that the widow must have married the soldier prior to June 27, 1890. So far as widows' claims are concerned, this superseded the act

As the laws now stand every survivor of the Civil War who served in the Union Army and who was honorably discharged and served more than 90 days is entitled to a pension when he reaches the age of 62 years.

Called Home by Tragedy.

Miss Mary McGough of Philadelphia, aged 18 years—a student in St. Joseph's Academy, McSherry-town—was summoned home on Saturday, April 22, by reason of a tragedy in her home, her father, Harry McGough, a saloon keeper, while drinking heavily had shot and killed her mother. The mother had prepared an attractive breakfast to cheer her husband who had been drinking heavily and when he was called he came to the table in a surly mood and without provocation began to fire his revolver. Of the four shots fired three hit his wife. On his way to the station house he was arrested and while he did not seem to be able to realize the enormity of his crime declared it was all his fault.

New Song for Nearby Academy.

Dr. Henry van Dyke of Princeton University has written a new song for the Mercersburg Academy. The academy stands under the shadow of the Blue Mountains, in one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys in the world. Its four hundred boys are gathered each year from every state in the Union and from many foreign countries. Dr. van Dyke is a warm personal friend of Dr. Irvine, the head master of the academy.

Each year when he comes to preach to the boys of the school, he spends a few extra days whipping the streams of that part of the Cumberland Valley for trout. The song, "Dear Mercersburg," which follows, is sung to the tune of "Heidelberg":

Dear Mercersburg.

Cumberland Valley is golden wide,
with its harvest overflowing;
Green are the woods on the mountain side,
and the rivers clear and cool;
But fairer by far than the valley's pride and the glory of hilltops glowing,
The blue and the white that floats from the height,
the flag of our good old school.
Here's to the school that grows—the vale;
Here's to her growing fame;
Never her heart and hope shall fail,
Ever her light shall flame.
Here's to her boys, a manly crew;
Here's to the faith they prove;
Here's to her leaders brave and true;
Here's to the school we love.

Oh, Mercersburg, dear Mercersburg, thy sons to thee belong.
And grateful praise for golden days
will always fill our song;
The noble thought that thou hast taught will make us strong and free,
And through the strife of later life our hearts will turn to thee. —Brooklyn Eagle.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Gettysburg readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Charles Kennel, 401 S. Washington St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago and I have not changed my opinion of them. I still consider this remedy the best one on the market for kidney trouble. A member of my family suffered from rheumatism and kidney complaint and was subject to acute attacks of backache. There was a stiffness and lameness across the loins especially noticeable in the morning and a tired, languid feeling was in evidence. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the People's Drug Store, brought the first relief that had ever been received and when they have been taken since then, benefit has always followed. It gives me great pleasure to tell of the merits of this remedy."

LINCOLN WAY ENDORSED ## THE UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF THE WAY

The Only Fitting Memorial for Lincoln and the Logical and Inevitable Choice.

Strong endorsement of the plan to have the Lincoln Memorial in the form of a road from Washington, D. C. to the battlefield of Gettysburg, was given last week by Benjamin Briscoe, president of the United States Motor Company, in an interview on the subject of American road building and its needs. Mr. Briscoe has been chiefly interested in the manufacture of automobiles and in co-operative industry and it is not generally known that he has exerted an increasing influence in highway development throughout the country.

"The Lincoln Memorial Road Association," said Mr. Briscoe, "is rendering an excellent service in its advocacy of such a road. In studying the question how to express in the most fitting manner our appreciation of Lincoln's life work, I am forced to the conclusion that the memorial should be a great highway rather than a monument, statue, bridge, arch or any other structure. Even if we take from the question every argument or motive that might be prompted by the use of an automobile, or the ownership of one, disassociate it entirely from our national good roads movement and admit nothing but that which determines the fitness of the memorial, the road still seems to be logical and inevitable choice."

"The reasons are sound, if not obvious. The greatest memorial the world has ever known is the Apollon Way in Italy, built by Apollon Claudius 200 years B. C. It was celebrated for its beautiful monuments, its temples and the sumptuous villas that arose on either side of it. Throughout the ages it has been called the 'Queen of Roads.'"

"The temples have fallen; the monuments have been destroyed; the villas are in ruins, but, to-day, twenty centuries after Apollon Claudius built it, the road is still in use bearing the burdens of commerce and the name of its founder. What memorial could be more worthy—more enduring? What could give Apollon Claudius such permanent fame?"

"Congress has decided that the Lincoln Memorial shall be paid for by the United States Government and a fund of $2,000,000 has been provided to cover the cost. A commission has been created to prepare plans and execute the work. The form of memorial most desired by the people undoubtedly will be adopted."

"A shaft should be excluded, because," continued Mr. Briscoe, "with such as the Washington Monument it invites contrast. An equestrian statue should be rejected because Washington now has one-tenth of all equestrian statues in the world. An arch possibly would make a good feature of general design, but, of itself, it would not be complete. An art gallery, a museum or any other building however beautiful would scarcely meet the requirement. Lincoln's fame is growing—not fading. To use any fixed or completed memorial would be to ignore the vital fact about his fame. For these reasons a great road seems to meet all the conditions of fitness."

"Lincoln went from the White House to Gettysburg to make an address which is on the tongue of every schoolboy and will be recited for a thousand years. Gettysburg is itself a memorial, a magnificent park on which seven millions of dollars have been expended. It is seventy-two miles from Washington in a northerly direction and the suggestion of a splendid boulevard from the White House to this famous battle ground seems most deserving."

"No particular engineering difficulties would be encountered. The country is rolling and offers fine landscape effects. The plan submitted by the Lincoln Memorial Road Association suggests a road 200 feet wide with a green sward 40 to 50 feet wide in the center and smooth highways on each side, 40 to 50 feet wide, one to be used by swift moving vehicles like automobiles—the other for carriages and wagons."

"Electric railways could be built on each side. Horticultural development could be carried on to a high plane and by apportioning sections of the 'Lincoln Way' to individual States, it would be possible for the people of all parts of the country to express their regard for Lincoln by developing their allotted portion in accordance with their taste and their means; all plans, however, being subject to the approval of the national commission created by Congress."

"The road would be used by hundreds of thousands of tourists. The full value of such a memorial could be appreciated only by imagining a two hours' ride through Maryland and Pennsylvania, with the Blue Ridge Mountains in sight part of the time, six or seven hours spent at the world-renowned battleground, with its memories of Round Top and Seminary Ridge, and by traversing other noted spots, including the scene of Pickett's charge."

"Looking at the matter from the standpoint of road improvement," concluded Mr. Briscoe, "it would seem that the 'Lincoln Way' certainly would become the nucleus of a great transcontinental highway to be built by the States through which it will pass. The cost of the memorial road has been estimated to be about $3,000,000. With this sum it will be possible to provide a fitting terminus on the battlefield of Gettysburg, while in the city of Washington a magnificent architectural development can be placed at the entrance to the road. It is a plan to make this entrance sufficiently impressive to meet the views of those who demand something tangible and substantial wholly within the national capital."

Pennsylvania is committed to the construction of a road extending clear across the State from Philadelphia to the Ohio line. Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and States farther west have given assurance that the road will be quickly extended across the continent."

These strong words of endorsement should encourage the people of this town to support an organization, one of its objects being the exploiting and giving publicity to the Lincoln Way idea. With the influence the idea has back of it, the future could be worked toward hopefully."

Why He Does It.

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said L. M. Buehler to a Compiler man who dropped into his store, "but I am glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis."

"The Dr. Howard Company in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes me to sell their regular fifty cent bottles at half-price, 25 cents, and, although I have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory."

"I am still selling the specific at half-price, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so, and anyone who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion or a general played out condition, ought to take advantage of this chance. You can tell your readers that if they are not satisfied with the specific that they can come right back to my store and I will cheerfully refund their money."

EAST BERLIN.

John Moritz, of York died last week. His death is reported in another column. He was an old schoolmate of your correspondent.

I noted the death in your paper of recent date of Mrs. Rebecca Fickes, widow of Abraham Fickes. I went to school to her husband in 1845-46. Mr. Fickes taught school in the log school house in Hampton. Later in 1856 I was hired to him on the old church farm between Wireman's mill and Heidersburg. Mrs. Fickes was like a mother to me, a kind and good neighbor. I was to drive the team and at that time the farmers put their horses in pasture in the evening. Mr. Fickes one evening said to me "Ed, get up at 3 o'clock and fetch the horses in." As I went to bed I said "Abe wake me up at 3 o'clock and he replied "If a man wanted to drive a team he ought to get up without calling." I got up at 2 o'clock and had the horses in the barn before 3 o'clock.

Last Saturday evening the Love-Fest took place at the Mummert Meeting House. At the services on Sunday morning 20 preachers were present from far and near, Elder Bowser, of Minnesota, Elder Wine, of Union Bridge, Md., Elder Kayler, of Lancaster County and Elder Longenecker of Dauphin County and York and Cumberland counties were represented. In the morning the church was filled to its capacity. It was estimated that from 1000 to 1200 people were on the ground.

Ezra Burgard of this place has bought the old house on the corner of Main and Third Streets formerly the old Resser property. The building was built 105 years ago. Mr. Burgard is erecting on the lot a large double brick house, A. B. Trimmer having the contract. E. L. S.

Many Features in N. A. Baseball Supplement.

With more features than have ever before appeared in one edition, the annual baseball supplement of The North American will appear Sunday, May 21.

For years this special baseball number has been regarded as the greatest work of its kind ever published, and this year's edition will far surpass all previous ones.

Color pages, illustrating the speed that is required in the national game and group pictures of the Athletic and Phillies are only a few of the features.

"Diplomatic Strokes of Our Baseball Jeffersons," an illustrated story, gives the fans a good idea of the inside workings of a big league team, and contains many humorous incidents about stars of the past and present.

A complete directory and personnel of the Philadelphia and nearby semi-professional and amateur teams occupy two pages, with pictures of the captains and managers. The supplement shows the marked strides baseball has made, and is well worth purchasing.

State Spraying Demonstrations

Public meetings will be held in two hundred and fifty orchards in the State, to which the public is cordially invited. A lecture on the above mentioned pests, giving their life history and best methods of destroying them will be explained, and literature treating on these enemies of the fruit grower distributed free.

The local Horticultural inspector will be present, and spray a block of trees.

The dates and places of holding the meetings in Adams county are as follows:

Can You Get Hot Water When You Want It?

CAN you get hot water at the turn of the faucet when there are no fires in the house—without waiting, or without lighting any heating device?

Can you always get hot water, even though there has been an unusual call upon the supply by other members of the family?

Can you get all the hot water you want the first thing in the morning or late at night? If not, you are missing one of the modern conveniences easily available in every home.

This miracle worker, which will give you an unlimited supply of hot water at any time of day or night, is called the RUUD AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER. It requires no attention. You do not have to light it or put it out—all you do is turn the faucet and hot water flows. The best idea of a RUUD may be had from an actual demonstration. Call at our salesrooms and see the RUUD in actual operation.

The RUUD AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER is brought into the cellar and connected with the water and gas pipes. A tiny pilot light is lighted and that is the end as far as you are concerned.

When the hot water faucet is open, the pressure of water operates a valve which turns on the gas in the burner—turning off the faucet automatically puts out the gas.

For reasons of economy and to prevent the water from getting too hot a temperature regulator automatically turns down the gas every time the water reaches a certain temperature, and automatically turns it on as the water starts to cool. This is the most wonderful part of the RUUD—it allows only enough gas to be burned to keep the water hot, and only the water that is actually used is heated.

DR. ELI HUBER PASSES AWAY

HE WAS A FIRM FRIEND OF GETTYSBURG AND THE COLLEGE

The Life and Influence of Dr. Huber
Gave Gettysburg College Amanda
Rupert Strong Professorship.

Rev. ELI HUBER, D.D., one of Gettysburg's most estimable citizens, passed away on last Friday afternoon at his home on Carlisle street, aged 77 years, 3 months and 28 days. While his health had been failing for several months his death was unexpected. He had been out driving within several days of the end, but 48 hours preceding death he received a paralytic stroke.

Dr. Huber was a native of Schuylkill county, this state, having been born in Pinegrove in 1834, son of Jacob and Sarah Huber. He entered the Preparatory Department of Gettysburg College in 1850 and graduated from the college in 1855 with honors. He was a tutor in college here for two years after graduation, 1856-7, and 1857-8 taught in the Greencastle Academy. While teaching he was pursuing his theological studies and graduated from the Seminary here in 1858.

Dr. Huber served in a number of churches, leaving the influence of a good life, nobly lived on the many who came under his guidance. He was pastor at Schuylkill Haven from 1858 to 1860, at Danville, 1860-61, at Hummelstown, 1861-6, Nebraska City, Neb., 1866-76, and during his pastorate was Superintendent of the City School of Nebraska City from 1872-5, and pastor of Messiah Church, Philadelphia from 1876-1892.

It was while pastor of Messiah Church he had as one of his parishioners Mr. James Strong and it was in great part through his pastor Mr. Strong became interested in Dr. Huber's Alma Mater, Gettysburg College, and established the Amanda Rupert Strong professorship of the English Bible in the college and nominated Dr. Huber as the first occupant of that chair. Dr. Huber had served for one year as Professor of Languages in Otter University, Nebraska City.

Dr. Huber possessed a very attractive personality, a man of the most peaceful disposition, quiet, retiring in many ways and abounding in a constant good humor, and with a positive character for all the virtues and uplifting influences, such as drew young men to him, and made them better for having known him, and the closer one came to him the more charmed they were with the man. ## Tramp Cuts Throat.

William Kelly, a demented tramp, cut his throat with an old razor on last Thursday near the Pennsylvania Monument on Hancock Ave. The gash while four inches in diameter did not sever any of the big arteries. The razor parted and weakness from loss of blood prevented the attempted suicide. He was discovered by Irwin Reynolds, living at the Weikert house and was taken to the Almshouse, where Dr. H. M. Hartman put eight stitches in the wound and the man is recovering. It is believed that he had been an inmate at Bayview Asylum, Baltimore and will be returned there.

Judgeship Term and Election.

A decision was handed down last week by the Supreme Court of the State which directly effects the term of Judge S. McC. Swope in the Adams—Fulton district.

The case decided arose by Judge Barrett of Philadelphia asking for a mandamus to compel an election in 1911 to fill his position, the term of which will expire Jan. 1, 1913. This request was based on the proposition that the municipal election of 1911 would be the one immediately preceding the expiration of his term. The Dauphin County Court refused to construe the law in such a way that an election to fill an office would take place fourteen months before the expiration of the term and held that at the expiration of his term, Jan. 1, 1913 the Governor would appoint a successor until the election in Nov. 1913. This view of the Lower Court was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

This decision settles the position of the judgeship in Adams County. The second term of Judge S. McC. Swope will expire Jan. 1, 1915. There will be no election of judge in 1913. The term expiring Jan. 1, 1915, there will be a vacancy in the office from that time until Jan. 1, 1916 when the term of the judge elected in Nov. 1915 will begin. Governor Tener's term will expire with the end of the year 1914 and it will be up to the next Governor elected in Nov. 1914 and assuming office Jan. 1, 1915 to appoint a Judge for the Adams—Fulton District for the year 1915 unless Governor Tener undertakes to make the appointment as one of the last acts of his administration.

The School Code is Now Law.

The Pennsylvania Legislature has presented State with one of the most important pieces of legislation that has been passed for years. After a struggle of over two and a half years and five months in the present legislation, all present school laws are wiped out and a school code is created that is believed to be second to none in the country. Pennsylvania was away behind all neighboring states and even foreign countries. The new School Code as it came from the Conference Committee passed the Senate by 27 to 8 and the House 138 to 49 and was signed by Governor Tener on last Thursday. The new code is believed to be about as free from machine politics as any such code could be framed and become a law in this State. It was drawn by the best educators in the State and not by politicians.

The school code was framed by a commission appointed by Governor Stuart under the provisions of a joint resolution of the Senate and House, passed in 1907. Its members were Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, Superintendent of Public Instructions, who was president of the commission; Dr. G. M. Phillips, of West Chester, secretary of the committee; M. G. Brumbaugh, Superintendent of School of Philadelphia; David B. Oliver of Pittsburgh; John S. Rilling, of Erie; James M. Coughlin, Superintendent of School of Wilkes-Barre, and William Lauder, of Riddlesburg, Bedford county.

The members of this commission, after the veto of their bill by Governor Stuart, redrafted it for the present Legislature.

R. R. Victim Identified.

The one legged man killed at New Oxford by the Western Maryland train and buried in the graveyard at the County Home was identified last week and body was disinterred and taken to Philadelphia. The man's name was John Delvin and belonged to a prosperous Philadelphia family. His brother Edward Delvin, dealer in Cotton and Woolen Waste came here on last Wednesday, and Steward Sheely of the County Home had the body taken up and the brother identified the body beyond all doubt as that of his brother.

The recovery of the body by the family came about through a letter written Steward Sheely by Frank Sullivan of Harrisburg. In letter he mentioned that he had seen an account of the killing of the man and that he had a card and that a one legged man had recently approached him with a similar card. He gave the name of man as John Delvin and the address of his brother in Philadelphia. Steward Sheely at once wrote to the Philadelphia address with the result that the brother came on to Gettysburg.

Edward Delvin told Mr. Sheely that there was no occasion for John to have lead the life he did. That he had a good home with every comfort. That he had a roving disposition and would turn up occasionally at his home and remain for days and weeks and as soon as his father would suggest that there was work at the Woolen Mill he could do, he would disappear.

Sproul Road Bill to Become Law.

The present session of the Legislature will come to an end tomorrow Thursday, Ascension Day and before adjournment is reached the Sproul road bill will have become a law or all the indications are wrong. The Sproul road bill passed the House last week with 200 members recorded in the affirmative and none in the negative. It had previously passed the Senate. It has gone to a Conference Committee and both Senate and House are expected to agree to bill as it comes from the Conference Committee. The bill carries $3,000,000 for direct State highways and $1,000,000 for State aid roads and accompanying the bill is a constitutional amendment for a bond issue of $50,000,000 to provide for the construction of nearly 300 miles of road connecting every county seat, and providing for seven roads into Gettysburg. Senator Martin and Representative Cole have supported the bill.

Postmaster's Convention.

The convention of the Postmaster's of Pennsylvania on last Friday and Saturday was declared by those in attendance, over two hundred, to have been a success and most delightful occasion. The program in our last issue was carried out and the entertainment presented by Postmaster Beales in trip over battlefield on two afternoons with trolley trip to Round Top, a band concert and luncheon called forth the highest praise for the kind attention accorded them. Easton was chosen for next year's meeting and officers elected were president, T. H. Harter, Bellefonte; vice presidents, Howard Weiss, Seigfried; George Serwash, Butler; M. L. Hetsbey, Hershey; L. M. Alleman, Littlestown; treasurer, Dr. J. H. Martin, Greenville.

Head-On Freight Wreck.

A head-on freight wreck occurred on the Reading Railroad last Saturday afternoon near Centre Mills, when two freight trains through a mistake as to orders as to passing point came together. The trains were within 200 feet of each other when crew saw the inevitable collision. The crews jumped and no one was seriously injured. The engines were wrecked and about ten cars were demolished.

SEMINARY COMMENCEMENT

ENDOUMENT FUND NOW OVER QUARTER OF A MILLION.

Salaries Were Increased—Fourteen of the Sixteen Graduates are Placed.

The Eighty-fifth commencement of the Lutheran Theological Seminary presented a most flattering financial condition to the Board of Trustees. They met on Thursday morning for the transaction of business, and upon the presentation of the statement of the Citizens' Trust Company of Gettysburg, Treasurer of the Seminary learned that the assets of the Seminary had been increased during the year by the receipt from the J. Harry Fritz estate of over $50,000, making the total of the endowment funds more than one quarter of a million dollars. They found the institution well cared for and with a handsome addition in the Refectory, which had been authorized at their meeting a year ago and which had been pushed to completion by the President of the Seminary, Dr. J. A. Singmaster.

The Commencement exercises were supplemented this year with a feature which proved very delightful. After the annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the Seminary held in the Seminary Chapel on Wednesday evening, at which an address was made by Dr. Albert Bell of York, the gathering adjourned to the refectory where a collation was served and various toasts responded to, Dr. A. R. Steek of York acting as toastmaster.

The Board of Trustees in recognition of the very satisfactory condition of the Seminary from every point of view gave the stamp of their approval thereto by voting each of the professors an increase of salary of $100 making the annual salaries $1700.

Dr. T. C. Billheimer was granted an annuity of $300, his resignation taking effect in September when Rev. H. C. Alleman of Philadelphia will assume the Chair of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis.

The Commencement exercises took place in College Church on Thursday evening with following program:

Old Church Ruin.

The final legal proceedings are taking place to close out one of the oldest churches in the County, the Hill or Marsh Creek Associated Presbyterian Church in Freedom township. The church building is a ruin and the land has overgrown into a thicket and as a wilderness has become an annoyance to the neighboring farmers. A good many years ago an attempt was made to raise money to repair and preserve building but the effort was a failure and building inside and out literally fell apart and down.

The Auditor General recently appointed Hon. William McClean escheator for the old Hill church, as being without an owner. The association was never chartered and no one living could be found who belonged to the old association. Its membership has become extinct. The real estate consisted of between 4 or 5 acres. The building was begun in 1792 and finished in 1794.

The application for an order to sell the property will be heard by the Court on June 19th.

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease—Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel F. Dawkins, 1214 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from catarrh."

Ostermoor : Mattress : $15.00

is Better than all Others for these very Pertinent Reasons:

Most Comfortable bed ever slept on—soft, yielding, but springy and resilient—never packs or gets lumpy, or loses its feeling of newness. That is because it is made of Ostermoor sheets; built, not stuffed. We have scores of letters from doctors and competent judges who declare it the only

Absolutely sanitary mattress because dust cannot work into it; no vermin can harbor in it; a sun-bath is all the renovating it ever needs; it will not absorb dampness, disease germs, or any poison from perspiration or the atmosphere. It is always

Perfectly Dry because non-absorbent. If the ticking is dry, the mattress is dry. No taking cold from it, no unpleasant or musty odor about it; always fresh and sweet. Testimonials in our free book bear witness for those who have used it for thirty years or more and who do not hesitate to say that it Lasts a Lifetime and stays in perfect condition. It never needs remaking or renovating. You may remove and clean the tick as often as you like.

No other mattress in the world, of any material, at any price, from any maker or through any dealer, can truthfully make and prove all the claims as can the Ostermoor. Do not take our word for it—our word is good—but if you will

NOT RELIGION.

It Was Something Very Different That Induced Eliza to Attend a Revival Meeting.

Mrs. S. of New Orleans has for many years been faithfully served by two negro women who, although bound by the tie of common devotion to their mistress, yet detest each other cordially, so that the kitchen is the scene of continuous battle.

Martha, the cook, is a leading light in the church. At revival meetings she was always the first to occupy the mourners' bench, the first to shout "Halleluliah!" and to fall into those convulsions of body and outflowing of limbs that to the African mean "getting religion." Eliza, the maid of all work, on the other hand, had always been an unregenerate heathen, scoffing at religion, jeering at Martha and declaring no power on earth could induce her to go inside a church. Great, therefore, was Mrs. S.'s surprise on the occasion of the last revival to find that it was Eliza and not Martha who was attending the meetings.

"Why, Martha," she exclaimed, "aren't you going to church?" "No'm," answered Martha sullenly. "Why?" "Cause dat Liza she goes now."

"But isn't there room for both of you?"

"No'm, dey ain't."

All Martha's pent-up indignation emphasized the answer.

"Cause, Miss Mary, dat Liza she jes' goes ter spite me. No sooner I gits up to go to de mo'ners' bench dan Liza she follers me and sets down close beside me, and befo' I has a chanst ter git 'ligion Liza she begins ter girate around and shout 'Glory halleluliah!' and she out wid her fists and hits me bim in de jaw, and she out wid her foots and kicks me spang in de shin. But, I tell you, 'tain't 'ligion Liza's got, Miss Mary; hit's debility."—New York Times.

Worrying Worker.

O, those worrying workers, how they take all the zest out of what should prove their greatest blessing for their forebodings. They will get more out of life if they take to heart these words of Heecher:

"It is not work that kills men; it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rust upon the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery but the friction."

Blazon this to hang framed above your desks, you despondent ones.

THE GREAT BIVOUAC OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE DEAD

Where Sleep Nearly Four Hundred Thousand Heroes Who Died in Battle.

By J. HOWARD WERT
"The knights are dust,
Their golden swords rust,
Their souls are with the saints, we trust."

—Coleridge.

"The land is holy where they fought,
And holy where they fell;
For by their blood the land was bought—
That land they loved so well."

—Isaac McLeilan.

"Rest on embalmed and sainted dead
Dear as the blood ye gave;
No impious footstep here shall tread
The herbage of your grave."

—Col. Theodore O'Harra.

The care of the United States is not confined to the living. It reaches out to protect the remains and honor the memory of the dead.

The Cemetery At Gettysburg.

Owing to its northern location, Gettysburg was one of the first battlefields of the Civil War to witness the inauguration of systematic plans for the collection in a beautiful cemetery of the bodies of those who had fallen for the Union. Almost before the roar of hostile cannon had died away, Hon. David Wills had formulated his plans and had enlisted the warm official support of Governor A. G. Curtin. The plot selected was dedicated, some four months later, by Abraham Lincoln in a few simple words which have become the standard for purity of diction and felicity of thought wherever the English language is spoken. Here Edward Everett, General O. O. Howard, Bayard Taylor, Col. Charles G. Halpine and a host of others have delivered orations and poems of worth.

For many years the authorities of the States having commands in the Federal Army of the Potomac that fought at Gettysburg carried on the work and cared for this resting place of the dead, and then it was handed over to the national government.

Institution of National Cemeteries.

Soon after the civil conflict closed the national government began preparations on an extensive scale for placing in proper burial places all who had fallen in the great struggle, whether slain on the battlefield or the victims of disease in hospitals and of starvation in prison pens. Thus in a few years national cemeteries arose that far surpassed the one at Gettysburg, both in area and the number of dead interred. The close association of the Gettysburg cemetery, however, with the great pivotal battle of the war and with the field that is more profusely decorated than any other of the world, will always give it great prominence in popular regard.

The work that the United States had undertaken was an arduous one, which required some twenty-five years for its completion. By 1899 the government had established eighty-two cemeteries in which were interred 326,391 bodies gathered from the nation's battlefields and from the trenches in which had been buried the dead of the hospitals and of prison pens like Andersonville and Salisbury. Of this number 148,861 were unknown.

The number of interments has been somewhat increased since that time, as even to the present day skeletons are yearly disclosed on the various battlefields through the work of the agriculturist or excavations for improvements. Yearly also veterans who answer the death summons, at their own request, are interred in the grounds containing the remains of their comrades who fell so long ago. This has been the case especially at Arlington, Antietam, Gettysburg, Chattanooga, Fort Leavenworth, Hampton (Va.), Knoxville, Vicksburg, Nashville and Soldiers' Home (D. C.). There have also been a number of national cemeteries instituted since 1899 in connection with various homes for veterans. From these causes it is probable that, in time, the number of the flags defenders sleeping the last sleep in grounds consecrated to their rest by the national government will approximate 400,000.

Where These Cemeteries are Located

These cemeteries of the nation's heroes are scattered through twenty-eight States and territories, including the Federal District of Columbia. But twelve are located in the north, the most prominent of these being Cypress Hills, N. Y., with 4,894 dead; Finn's Point, N. J., with 2,645, all but 100 of whom are unknown; Gettysburg, Pa., with over 3,600, of whom 1,612 are unknown; Philadelphia, Pa., with over 2,300; Mount City, Ill., with 5,230, of whom 2,763 are unknown, and Woodlawn cemetery, Elmhurst, N. Y., with over 3,100.

But not even national lines bound the government's care for its brave soldiers. In Mexico, just outside the limits of the city of Montezuma, is a United States national cemetery in which repose the bones of those who fell beneath the flag whom General Winfield Scott captured that city, and in this ground may be buried any loyal soldier of the Civil War who dies in the land of the Aztec, should his friends so desire.

But, of course, the Southern States, having been the scene of nearly all the active operations of the great war, it is in them that most of the national cemeteries are found. Large numbers of Union dead were removed from Gettysburg, Antietam and points near Washington to their former homes by sorrowing friends. At more distant southern points this was impracticable and substantially all the dead were buried where they fell, often in trenches and pits which were never opened again till the contest had closed. To speak very briefly of a few of the most celebrated of these resting places of the nation's dead will be the object of the remainder of this article.

Vicksburg National Cemetery contains more dead soldiers who wore the blue than any other in the United States, the number being 16,618, of whom 12,719 are unknown. In fact, many of these sacred spots consecrated by a grateful nation might properly be called cemeteries of the "nameless," for in thirty one of them the number of "unknown" buried exceeds the "known." Not all the unknown, however, are in these last resting places; for, with all the care exercised by the government's agents, many buried on the field in unmarked graves were never found. They rest beneath the sod and the dew, in morass and in plantation, in lonely dell and on mountain crag. From their remains harvests have grown and been gathered; over them forests have been matured. Their earthly abiding place will remain unknown and unmarked till time ends.

Each year since the institution of the national cemeteries all of them have been improved and beautified by the employees of the government until most of them have been made by the landscape gardener into miracles of beauty. Often great natural disadvantages were overcome laboriously. This was especially the case at Vicksburg. When the government first obtained the ground it was a succession of ridges and gullies, barren and repulsive in appearance. Today it has been transformed into a vista of terraces, sloping hillside and shaded nooks with few rivals in the country.

There are seven national cemeteries in the State of Tennessee, of which the one at Nashville is the largest. It contains the remains of 16,534 Union soldiers, being a close second to Vicksburg. It lies six miles north of the city along the Louisville & Nashville railroad, which divides it into almost equal parts. It contains the dead of the battles at Nashville, Franklin, Gallatin, Bowling Green, Cave City and other points in Tennessee and Kentucky.

The cemetery at Chattanooga is one of the most beautiful in the land. Here rest the Union soldiers who fell at Chickamauga Missionary Ridge, Resaca, Lookout Mountain and on many other battlefields of Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee. The number there interred is 13,000, of whom nearly 5,000 are unknown. The cemetery is almost circular having a circumference of nearly a mile, and contains seventy-six acres. No mounds mark the last resting places of the dead. But, laid in ever widening circles, they take their last rest beneath the shade of stately oaks and sombre pines, with Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge rising grandly in the distance.

At Arlington Heights is one of the grandest of our national cemeteries. This property was originally a part of the Curtis estate, owned by Gen. Robert E. Lee when the war began and

THIN MILK

How can the baby grow strong if the nursing mother is pale and delicate?
Scott's Emulsion
makes the mother strong and well; increases and enriches the baby's food.

confiscated in consequence, but afterwards paid for by the government. The old Curtis mansion, with its high portico and massive pillars, was utilized for the office and residence of the superintendent of the cemetery. Quite near are the graves of the Curtis family. Close by are the tombs of many distinguished Union generals, including W. B. Hazen, Gabriel L. Paul, who had both eyes shot out at Gettysburg, yet lived for many years after, and James B. Ricketts.

South of the old mansion is a stately dome resting on plain white pillars twenty-five feet in height, the floor being of tessellated marble, black and white. It was originally Gen. Lee's summer house, but when the estate came into possession of the government it was remodeled into a Temple of Fame, the names of the most distinguished soldiers of American history being inscribed on the pillars and the ornamental base of the dome.

West of these is a massive plain granite tomb, erected over a large vault, on one side of which is the inscription:

"Beneath this stone repose the remains of 2,211 unknown soldiers gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock. Their remains could not be identified, but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country; and its grateful citizens honor them as of their noble army of martyrs. May they Rest in Peace."

The great amphitheatre used for Decoration Day ceremonies is a unique structure, whilst the center plot of over 200 acres has been profusely decorated by every art of the landscape gardener. The original number of interments at Arlington was 16,292. As, however, many officers and soldiers of the late war and of the U. S. regular army are buried on these grounds from time to time, it is probable that it now contains more defenders of the nation than any other national cemetery of our land.

Seven miles from Memphis is a national cemetery containing 13,987 bodies, of which number 3,818 are unknown. Here are buried the dead of many battlefields of Arkansas, Mississippi, Western Tennessee and Western Kentucky, including the heroes who died at Island No. 10 and Fort Pillow. The graves are arranged in parallel rows, the known being grouped by States.

The cemetery at Andersonville contains 13,702 bodies, nearly all of whom were from the loathsome prison pen there located. At Salisbury, N. C., thousands of Union soldiers, prisoners of war, were herded together like cattle. Tortured by starvation, weakened by disease, broken in spirit, with the scantiest of medical attention, beyond all hope or help, they died off by myriads and were buried promiscuously in 18 shallow trenches, each 240 feet long. Not until the final trumpet sounds will the number lying within the Salisbury cemetery be known. Of 12,132 corpses that it is known are deposited there, there is a record of the names of 97. The most the government could do was to decently reinter these nameless martyrs.

The number buried in the elevated plot overlooking the Antietam field is 4,688. The location, just outside the town of Sharpsburg, is a beautiful one, which is being rendered more ornate each year.

Virginia, as the greatest battlefield of the Rebellion, contains one-fifth of all the national cemeteries, and one-fifth of all the Union soldiers whose remains repose in our national cemeteries sleep in Virginia soil. Within a radius of fifteen miles from Richmond there are seven of these resting places of the nation's dead. The seven cemeteries of the State contain the bodies of 73,320 Union soldiers, known and unknown. Those around Richmond contain the remains of those who fell in the various campaigns for the capture of the Confederate capital, as well as the victims of the prison pens of Libby, Pemberton, Belle Isle and Castle Thunder. The cemetery at City Point, Grant's headquarters in the final operations against Richmond and Petersburg and the location during the siege of the field hospitals of the Army of the Potomac, has 3,158 bodies. At Cold Harbor are buried 1,953 who fell in the disastrous attack on the fortifications at that point and in the battle of Gainesville. At the Seven Pines cemetery are 1,271 who fell in the battle of Fair Oaks.

One of the saddest testimonials to the fierce fratricidal strife that for four years convulsed our land is found in the cemetery at Fredericksburg, overlooking the Rappahannock. Here sleep 15,273 heroes in blue of this disastrous field and of the battles of Chancellorsville and the Wilderness. Of that number 12,785 are unknown.

Notwithstanding the proximity of Arlington, 3,542 are buried in the cemetery at Alexandria, Va., these being generally soldiers who died in the hospitals in that vicinity.

The interesting facts about our national cemeteries have not been exhausted. The subject has only been fairly begun. To give all that might be said would prolong any single article to undue length.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

REVEALED BY FIRE

What a Discarded Lover's Heroism and Sacrifice Brought Him

By Addison Howard Gibson

The full September moon shone down upon a little cabin on the dry prairies of western Kansas, lighting up the faces of a young man and woman who were slowly walking up and down the open space before the door.

"I was so happy, Rachel," the man said, glancing at the strong, beautiful face of his companion, "when I heard your school up in the Wyoming mountains was closed and you were coming home. I thought you were coming to stay this time. I hope so, for, Rachel, I've loved you a long time."

Dan Southard leaned toward the girl to study the effect of his avowal on her.

But Rachel Winton betrayed no emotion.

She merely turned her dark eyes from the man's eager face and looked off across the moonlit prairie.

"I've been working and waiting, Rachel," he continued, his voice husky with feeling, "until I had something to offer you. I was sure you wouldn't give up teaching for just anything—you're not that kind."

"But I've loved you ever since two years ago, when we all came out to these prairies together in our covered wagons. I remember, after we were here, how bravely you worked to help your parents get started off comfortably before you went with your uncle to Wyoming to teach that ranch school."

"Dan," she exclaimed almost sternly, "I haven't ceased to remember our old house, which father lost on that security debt, the home we were forced to leave when we came here. Mother and I were not very brave, for we shed tears most of the way, though no one knew it. We came because it was the only thing to do, but this pioneer life is a hard, hard one."

"In my heart I am at war with it and always have been. It takes away youth and kills all high and noble ambitions. See how mother has aged during the two years we have lived here. It makes me bitter. That's why I go back to teach. I'm going to make enough to take them away from this life."

"But, Rachel," he pleaded, "you shall never work as your mother has had to, I promise it," then suddenly, with a catch in his voice, "Say, girlie, there's no truth in the report about your caring for that rich Wyoming ranchman?"

"Mr. Miles has been very kind to me," she answered without pretending not to understand. "He has offered to let father and mother have the lovely home he owns in Denver if I'll marry him. It would be an ideal place for them to end their days in."

"My God, girlie! I couldn't stand it to see you the wife of another!" the young man cried, his strong frame shaken with emotion.

"You mustn't care so much, Dan," she returned, tender pity for his suffering making her tones kind. "Get a better girl to share your home—one who will love you enough to make the best of this hard life."

"Never, never, Rachel," he answered, with passion. "I love only you. If you could but read my heart and see how much you would surely care just a little for me. Your ranchman, rich as he is, will never love you as I do, Rachel! Never!"

"I couldn't love any man well enough to give up all I enjoy and settle down to this isolated life, this continual treadmill of drudgery," she retorted, turning away, then in a milder tone, "Forget me, Dan."

Forget her! That he would never do—he never could. There was a time—it was when they lived in their covered wagons and camped at night by the trail; yes, and even after they were settled here—that he had thought she cared for him.

Those had been the happiest days in Southard's life. He had never dreamed that she hated those free, rolling prairies so intensely.

Blind to this, he had been toiling on his new chain to get things in good shape before asking her to marry him. Bitterly now he felt that it was all labor lost, for without Rachel Winton nothing was worth while.

After gazing at the girl a moment in silent reproach Southard walked over to his tethered horse, mounted and rode away.

The man climbed higher as Rachel stood looking after the vanishing horseman.

"Poor Dan!" she murmured. "He is so strong and good. Father and mother love him like a son, but I just can't, can't." And the tears gathered in her eyes.

"I was intended for something better. If I wasn't, why should I dislike the rough, crude ways of pioneer life so terribly?"

With this question on her lips Rachel Winton entered the cabin, where her parents were already asleep, and sought her couch.

For a long time she lay awake, her mind, much against her will, busy comparing young Southard and Mr. Miles. Dan's clear cut but somewhat boyish face lost nothing by comparison with that of the bearded, middle aged ranchman who had been wooing her persistently for the past year.

Life with one meant the unceasing drudgery of the prairie farm; with the other, wealth to enable her to live wherever she might choose herself and also give her parents a comfortable home.

But which of the men held the key to her heart?

Really she could not tell, but she grew drowsy making herself believe she would be able in any event to compel her mind with its power of judging wisely to control her heart.

Toward midnight she was aroused by a strange pungent smell pervading her little room. Her breathing was not quite free. What could it mean?

She lay for a minute dazed, yet with what sense she could command, trying to discover the cause of the odor that was gaining in strength and stifling power.

Suddenly a great crimson light illumined the small window. With a quick movement Rachel sprang from bed, and as she did so there came to her ears the rapid beat of a horse's hoofs on the prairie road.

Then she heard Dan's voice burdened with awful import.

"Rachel!" he called. "Mr. Winton! Get up! Get up quick! The prairie is on fire!"

"Father! Mother!" the girl called, running to their bed. "Get up! Do you hear? There is a big fire. Yes, Dan," she called from the window as she helped her mother to dress.

"There's not a minute to lose," Southard called back. "The fire is sweeping this way as fast as a strong wind can bring it."

There had been no rain for three weeks, and everything was dry as tinder.

The Wintons understood the terrible danger impending.

Not only the cabin, but stock, crops, even they themselves, were at the mercy of those leaping flames.

"Bring the blankets, quick!" shouted Southard. Obeying him instantly, Rachel dragged every blanket out of the house.

Dan had ridden his horse to the little spring in the hollow and was rapidly filling every pail he had been able to find about the place.

Acting under his directions, the girl mounted her father's pony, and she and Dan carried water for Mr. and Mrs. Winton to wet the blankets, this being their only means of fighting the fire.

How they worked and fought! It seemed as if the whole world was arrayed against them, and all the while the moon looked down, cold and uncaring, while the fire swept fiercely onward until it caught in a row of dry cornstalks that reached nearly to the cabin. Here the battle must be fought with renewed energy.

The smoke of the burning grass and grain assailed their nostrils, scorched their throats and blinded their eyes, but with hands torn and blistered they toiled on.

When the old couple fell back overcome Dan and Rachel took their places with the heavy wet blankets and worked side by side. Inch by inch they beat back the angry flames.

Even in that terrible situation the girl felt a singular strength and coolness in working by Southard's side. She felt that the enemy must yield to such grand and compelling superiority.

When the fire attacked them from another vulnerable point it was Dan's exhaustless energy that saved the day.

By sacrificing a patch of ripe grain, through a prompt back fire, the foe was met and made to recoil in wrathful flames upon itself.

After a time the great body of the fire swept away northward, having consumed everything of the Wintons' except cabin and stock.

With a thankfulness in their hearts for the preservation of these, the old couple entered the house and threw themselves upon the floor.

Then Southard and Rachel came back with weary, lagging feet from their last successful onslaught.

"Everything's safe now, Rachel," he said huskily, starting toward his horse.

"Dan," she questioned, a queer choking in her throat, "you are not going now?"

He stopped and looked at her. She had never appeared more beautiful to him than now, with the marks of that great fire battle upon her face and tattered dress.

"All we have left we owe to you, Dan," she went on, noting his scorched face, bleeding hands and burned clothing.

Then she placed her blackened hand on his shoulder. How he trembled under that touch.

"I don't feel as if I could bear to have you leave us, Dan." There was a tender pleading in her tones.

"The danger's over, Rachel," he reassured her, "and I must ride all the way to Westfield before daybreak."

"Why to Westfield?" she asked.

Without a word he pointed across the blackened prairie toward his claim.

Only a mass of smoking ruins marked the place where his house and stable had been. She understood.

"You left all you had to come to us, Dan," she said, with a sob. "Now you have nothing left. Without your help everything here, even our lives, would have been sacrificed. Oh, Dan, the light of that fire has given me a sight of my own heart! I see that the true life for me is right here, and if you'll let me I'll help you make another home."

"Rachel!" he cried. "You can't mean it! Do you really love me?"

"I have loved you all the time, my knight of the prairies," she answered as his strong arms gathered her to his breast.
